RETROSPECT.

OUR first transition year from war to peace has passed. It has been a troublesome year, unsettled, a year of problems following on each other's heels—indeed sometimes marching four abreast. But with all the unrest and grumbling a great stride has been taken. Millions have been transferred from non-productive to productive work and to a large extent have been absorbed. The case of the number of men, large in itself, though very small in proportion to the total number demobilised, who have not been able to find work, is one that needs every decent man's help. Their position must not be prejudiced by the small proportion among them who won't work. Some of us were active in persuading them to risk their all for us and it is up to us at the very lowest to see that they do not suffer for it. They do not want charity—merely justice and the chance to earn their living again.

Dundalk has shared in the general dissatisfaction with wages paid and hours of work which has been prevalent all over the three kingdoms. We have had strikes—long and short and probably both justified and unjustifiable and we have had rearrangements without resort to that extreme course. But all these changes, whether brought about by one means or the other have made the articles produced or handled by the trades concerned dearer to buy, and so increased the cost of living to the men themselves and everyone else. If by quicker work and improved machinery, 1/- spent in wages can produce a tenth or a fifth more result, the price of that article can be reduced and the 1/- of wages will buy more—that is, the cost of living will fall. Make more things in an hour or make a given thing in less time than at present. If we all do this—those responsible by improved methods and labour-saving machinery, and those who carry these out and use them by quickness and endeavour to save time, shall see the result immediately.

We think the energies of the Employers Associations, the Farmers Unions, the Trades Councils and Agricultural Workers Unions would be much better employed if jointly directed to the above end than by fighting each other and benefitting nobody.

Blackrock claims the credit of the two building events of the year, the new A.O.H. Hall which is finished and the Oliver Plunkett Memorial Church, whose promoters have been so skilfully and successfully raising their fund. The building of houses has been at a standstill, and there are many who want them. The interest on the cost of building a house would be greater than the rent one would at present receive. It seems that to solve the problem we are to build houses and pay for them partly in a weekly sum in rent and the rest in rates and in taxes. We don't know whether it is a reasonable thing that the 13,000 people in Dundalk should help to pay the interest or rent for the 100 or 200 people who will live in any new houses built. Present rents of houses are by Government compulsion practically pre-war amounts. It seems a shabby action that a government which has admitted that the cost of living has increased 100% and has said in many cases that certain people are entitled to a corresponding increase in their income, should say to the man who has provided the houses now in existence and for whom the cost of living has increased just in the same degree, you must not get 100% more rent. You must live on what you got before the war though it will, we admit, only buy you half as much.

In shipping matters, our old and staid Steampacket Company has become quite frivolous—perhaps after the sixty-year old SS. Earl of Erne left it for the East. The shares, which once stood at £2 10s. 0d., have changed hands at £25. Rumour says it may soon cease to be a local company. The Greenore-Holyhead service has been held up all year owing to shipping shortage, but 1920 has seen its resumption both for passengers and goods. Our train services have been brought back to practically pre-war facilities, but the day of penny-a-mile fares will never return to us.

We have had three local Race Meetings, very successful to all concerned, several Sports Meetings, a revived Regatta and Aquatic Sports (where the aqua was unfortunately very much in evidence) and a Donkey Derby or two.

In the entertainment section, in addition to our up-to-date "Movies," as the Americans call them, and the indefatigable pre-Bazaar functions, we have had an Oratorio, a very excellent opera "Maritana," by the Dundalgan Choral Society, and a pantomime, "Robinson Crusoe," all produced by our own townspeople—a most creditable musical record. What has become of our Orchestral Society which we have refused to delete from our directory section? It must come out of its hibernation.

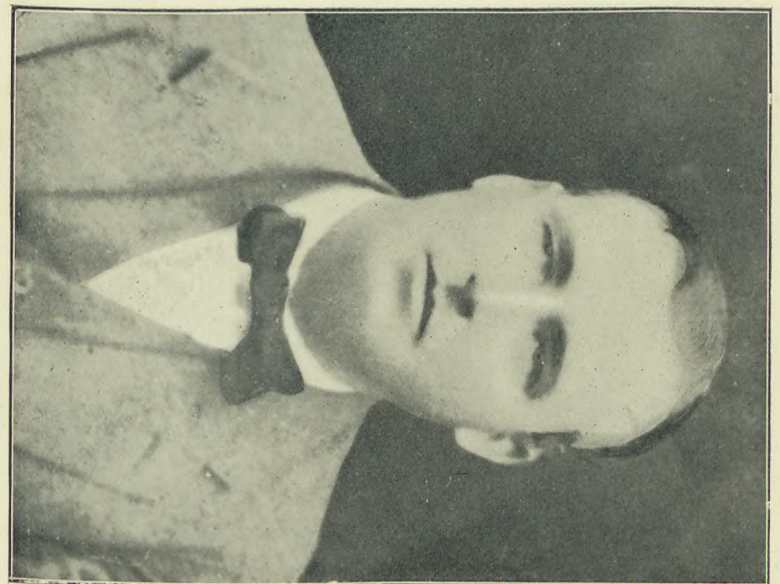

The weather during the year, as will be seen elsewhere in this book, has been extraordinarily dry. Our water supply has not been large enough to stand the drain, and as this has happened in two other years lately, the matter will, we understand, be carefully considered this coming year by our municipal housewife—the Urban Council.

There have been rumours of the sale of the Dundalk Demesne, but nothing has yet taken place. There is no doubt that it could be a benefit to the town if it were opened up in various ways that have been suggested. Whatever happens, some of it must be retained as a public park.

In looking over the list of those prominent in our district who have passed over during the year to the great majority, one is struck by the preponderance of those comparatively young. Among many others by whose loss we are the poorer are Miss Hamilton, Miss McNess, and Miss Jennings; Miss Ferguson and Miss White of Blackrock; Doctors MacQuillan and O'Connell, Messrs. Wm. Dickie, Robert J. Bailie, T. D. Norris, D.L., Wm. Maxwell, Patrick Reilly, Crowe-st., Louis Mallon, S. J. McCourt, Peter J. Murphy, James Murphy, James Darcy, John Taaffe, Henry Curran, Robert Warren, Mr. James Whittaker, Mill House; and among former Dundalk folk, Mrs. Park, Mrs. Huggins, and Mr. B. A. Peters.

Dr. J. A. MacQuillan,
Tuberculosis Medical Officer for Co. Louth

Dr. Peter H. O'Connell,
Surgeon to Louth Infirmary and Coroner,
Died June 2nd 1920

Obituaries.

Dr. J. A. McQUILLAN.

The death of Dr. McQuillan, Tuberculosis Medical Officer for the County, at the age of 41, evoked great sympathy with his wife and children. He came of a well-known Drogheda family, and after practising in the Cork Street Hospital and in Ardee, he was appointed in 1912 to assist the Louth County Council in the cure and prevention of consumption, in which his efforts were very successful.

He married Miss May O'Connell, daughter of the late Mr. Henry O'Connell, and settled in Dundalk. Dr. McQuillan contracted typhoid fever and, after a short illness, died in Dublin on January 7th, 1919.

He was enthusiastic and energetic in his administration, skilful in his work and a favourite with everyone.

Dr. PETER H. O'CONNELL.

Dr. O'Connell, who died from typhoid fever on June 2nd, 1919, aged 34, was youngest son of the late Mr. Henry O'Connell, who was so long honourably known in public and private life in Dundalk.

Dr. O'Connell, who was a Blackrock College Boy, after a very successful studentship, set up in practice in Dundalk and on the death of Dr. MacDonnell he became Surgeon to the County Louth Infirmary, which position he held until his early death. He also succeeded Dr. Sellars as Coroner for the North Division of the County. In the influenza epidemic his strong constitution brought him through a severe illness, contracted whilst doing double duties owing to the dearth of medical men, but its effects undoubtedly contributed to his failure to withstand the typhoid.

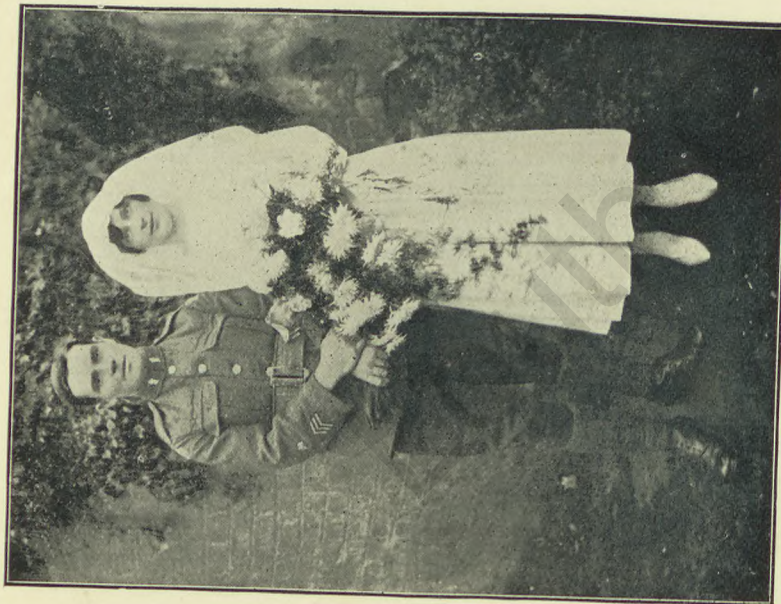

A great favourite in social life, a man with a broad-minded and humorous outlook on life, a surgeon to whom very many are grateful for his skill and attention, he succumbed to infection caught in the exercise of his professional duties.

Mr. PATRICK REILLY.

There were few men in Dundalk who took a greater interest in or knew more about the people of the town and the county round it than the late Mr. Reilly. His establishment in Crowe Street was a meeting ground for people of very many shades of opinion. His remarkable memory for family history and local events made him a most interesting and entertaining talker. His father and grandfather were both associated with the hairdressing and perfumery business—the family connection with it dating from 1772 to the present day, when Mr. Reilly's son, Mr. Mortimer C. Reilly carries it on as the fourth generation. We doubt Drowned by torpedoing of R.M.S. "Leinster," Oct. 10, 1918.

R.Q.M.S. McKenna who served in the Tyneside Irish (25th Batt. Northern Ireland Fusiliers) was mentioned by Sir Douglas Haig in despatches for gallant and distinguished services in the war.

if there are many, or any, other local examples of such business longevity in Dundalk.

Of late years Mr. Reilly suffered constantly from severe asthma and inability to sleep, but he was always cheery, urbane, and uncomplaining. He carried on his business for 53 years and was at work the day previous to his death, which took place on 7th February, 1919.

Mr. PETER J. MURPHY.

Mr. Murphy, son of the late Mr. John Murphy, of Stonetown, was for some years manager to the late Mr. Roe's stationery department and after gaining experience in other parts of Ireland, he returned to Dundalk took over the shop he had formerly managed, and carried it on most successfully especially in the news-agency line.

He was a quiet, industrious man; it was a pleasure to meet him and he was always willing to give help when asked. He died after a very short illness on June 7th, 1919.

Miss MacNESS.

In October, 1891, Miss Louise F. MacNess, sister-in-law of the late Mr. W. R. Rogers, was appointed Lady Superintendent of the County Infirmary by the Board of Governors. She was well fitted for her post both as a highly trained and fully qualified surgical nurse and a most efficient housekeeper, having filled important posts in Dublin hospitals. She managed the Infirmary for almost 27 years until failing health obliged her to resign in June, 1918, when she went to live with her sister, Mrs. Rogers. She did not live long to enjoy her well-earned rest, as she died in May of the following year. She was held in the greatest esteem by her employers, first by the Board of Governors and later by the Joint Committee of Management and also by the Nurses, Patients, and Servants. During her term of office the Infirmary was brought up to a very high standard and many improvements effected were due to her suggestions.

Mr. S. J. McCOURT.

Mr. McCourt's death at the age of 63, which took place on October 25th last, removes a well-known figure from our town life. He acted since 1887, when it was founded, as Secretary of the Starr Bowkett Building Society and owned a hardware business in Park Street. Some years ago he took a prominent part in local affairs and sat on the Town Board for some years. The attendance at the funeral bore visible witness to his popularity and his character.

Mr WILLIAM DICKIE.

Mr. Dickie, whose unexpected death in the prime of life occurred last year, was the son of the late Alexander Dickie of Rochdale, and a brother of Mr. Robert Dickie, Solicitor, and Mr. Alfred Dickie, Barrister.

Oliver Plunkett Memorial Church, Blackrock.

OUR readers will be interested in the following particulars of the new church to be built at our local watering place, the foundation stone of which was laid by H.E. Cardinal Logue on Sunday, August 31st, 1919. Our picture shows its design and Irish style.

It is to be built in an excellent and convenient site, and Very Rev. Canon Donnellan, P.P., is to be complimented not only on his skill in organising the scheme but for his courage in attempting it at all under present adverse conditions. The activity and enthusiasm of his helpers, especially the ladies, have impressed themselves on all minds.

The project to restore the lonely old fragment church at Ballybarrack where Archbishop Oliver Plunkett many a time preached, as a chapel-of-ease is worthy of all support.

The new Oliver Plunkett Memorial Church at Blackrock, Dundalk, is artistically designed in the Hiberno Romanesque style.

The nave is 80 ft. long x 31 ft. wide, floored with timber on breeze concrete, having tiled centre and side passages. In the walls of the Nave are two recessed confessionals. These walls are divided into bays with richly moulded pilasters and arches. In the recess formed by each bay are placed three circular headed windows giving ample light to the building.

On the north-west angle of the building approached from the nave is situated an octagonal baptistery. On the south-east angle a Celtic Round-tower is designed to contain stairs to gallery and bell-cot. At the east end of nave the sanctuary is divided from same by a richly molded chancel arch.

The sanctuary measures 31 ft. x 11 ft., and will be floored with mosaic; it will give accommodation for two side altars placed in arched and molded recesses in the east gable wall. The arches for these recesses will be carried on Scagliola columns with bronze caps and bases. The High Altar will be situated in a semi-circular apsidal end projecting 13 ft. x 16 ft. beyond the east gable, and divided from the sanctuary by three marble steps under an imposing arch.

On the west side of the sanctuary will be situated the spacious Priests' Sacristy, approached from an exterior door and a lobby, and having Boys' Sacristy and heating chamber adjoining.

The roof of the church will be carried on six king post principals with carved semi-circular ribs of pitch pine open to the apex. The rafters will be dressed and molded, and the ceiling will be formed by sheeting on top of same. The height of the church will be 30 ft. to the wall plate and 48 ft. from the floor to the apex.

The building will be lined with brickwork having the ventilated cavity between the brick and the stone exterior wall, which will provide against any fear of dampness.

The exterior walls will be built of rubble masonry, neatly pointed and enriched with cutstone Newry granite dressings to all opes.

The buttresses, quoins, barges, plinths, &c., will also be of Newry granite.

In the exterior of the west end is placed the principal entrance door with arcading and large wheel window worked in Newry granite over same. The wheel window, door and arcading will be set in a deep recess formed of richly carved Newry granite arches carried on shafts, molded bases and carved caps.

The west gable will be surmounted by a stepped barge course and a large carved granite Celtic Cross.

The contract for this important church has been placed by the Very Rev. B. Canon Donnellan, P.P., in the hands of Mr. James M'Adorey, Builder, Dundalk. The Architects are Messrs. William H. Byrne & Son, 20 Suffolk Street, Dublin.

Rainfall in Dundalk in 1919.

(AS RECORDED ON 8in. DIAM. GAUGE AT TOWN HALL.)

LAST year was exceptionally dry, the drought lasting on till the end of November. As compared with the dry years of 1911 and 1914, the total rainfall was somewhat similar, exceeding the former slightly and rather less than the latter. The period from January to November, 1919, created a record for low rainfall in Dundalk. The total fall for the year was 26.11 inches per square foot, July was the driest month and December the wettest, giving us in itself more than one-fifth of the total year's rain.

We understand that these records are verified by a gauge kept by Col. T. J. Jones at Lisnawilly. The year's rainfall at Annaskeagh was 34.76 ins. at 210 ft. O.D. and 32.18 ins. at Ballymakellett at 670 ft. O.D.

Dundalk Post Office and the War.

WE think there are many people of the town unaware of the part that our local postal officials took in our defence, and we have been able to obtain some facts which ought to be put on record to their very great credit.

At the time when the drain on the Allied Armies became very great, an appeal was made to those employed in our post office to volunteer and, although it was known that the service meant certain discomfort and privation, possible injury or the loss even of life, the call was splendidly answered, as the figures we give will show.

Our local men served on every front and in many lands, and four—A. Dunlop, B. Carolan, J. McShane and J. Green made the great sacrifice.

ROBINSON CRUSOE PANTOMIME.
Presented by the Dundalk Rowing Club, directed by Mr. W. K. Twibill.
December 10 & 11, 1919.

THE DUNDEALGAN CHORAL SOCIETY.
Feis Ceoil Prizewinners, 1916, 1917 and 1st Prize Div. I, 1918.

Dundevalgan Choral Society.

THE Dundevalgan Choral Society, which has had a most successful career since its inception, was formed early in the year 1916, under the personal direction of Mr. Van Craen, to develop and foster a taste for Musical Art in Dundalk.

Mr. Van Craen, who came to the town with a reputation of having no equal in his profession as a Master of Choral Training, began preparing the Members, which then numbered 35 enthusiasts, for the Feis Ceoil Competitions of that year. The venture was a success, the Choir carrying off, in three different classes, one 1st and two 2nd prizes. In November of the same year a most successful Concert was given in the Town Hall. The steady influx of new Members up to this period necessitated the forming of a Committee for the better carrying out of its functions, and on February 1st, 1917, it was decided that the Choir should be known in future as the "Dundevalgan Choral Society."

At the Feis Ceoil Competitions held in Dublin, May, 1917, the Society was again successful—on this occasion obtaining the 1st prize in second division for Mixed Choirs—59 Members competing. The achievements of the Society were now well known amongst the townspeople, who, to mark their appreciation, turned up in record numbers at the Town Hall to hear the Concert Edition of "Faust," which was presented by the Members in January, 1918.

In May, 1918, they again travelled to Dublin, and on this occasion captured the Blue Ribbon of Choral Singing in Ireland by taking 1st prize in Division I, when 65 Members faced the adjudicator. The press notices were unstinted in their praise of the Society's attainments, and we have only space to give the following excerpt from the Dublin Evening Herald's report by JACQUES:—

"I was very pleased to hear the Dundalk Choir Members singing their way to success. The artistic revival in this growing prospering town beyond the Boyne is one of the most encouraging features of the movement. Mr. J. B. Van Craen, the musical director of the Society, dispenses with the use of a baton, and has peculiarities and mannerisms in conducting that rather add to the performance of the Choir. There can, however, be only one opinion as to the effect of his methods. He inspires his singers; he gets emotions and effects that often thrill. A Choir in other hands might be a very dull clogging machine; in his it takes life and movement. Dundalk has had its season of opera by amateurs. If the Dundevalgan Choral Society is a fair sample of the quality of musical art and expression in the capital of North Louth, then Dundalk has every reason to be proud of its standard bearers."

At the request of the Town Hall Picture Company the Society gave recitals of the winning test-pieces at two of the performances of the Company in June, 1918.

The Membership now began to increase surprisingly, and the Committee, spurred on by the talent at their disposal, decided to go still a step higher and launch into Grand Opera. The evergreen and popular "Maritana" was selected and produced by the Society (augmented by a select Orchestra composed mainly of the Dundalk Orchestral Society) in the Town Hall before crowded houses on 18th, 19th and 20th February, 1919. The performance was a huge success, and so far exceeded the hopes of the promoters that a continuation of operatic studies was decided upon, the Society being at present rehearsing the opera "Bohemian Girl" for production about Easter.

We cordially agree with the critic who said "Mr. Van Craen should be proud of his Choir," and we trust that in future ventures this excellent Society will have a continuation of the generous public support accorded to them in past productions.

The following is taken from the Belfast Evening Telegraph's report of "Maritana" of 19th February, 1919:—

"To perform a complete opera, soli, chorus, and orchestra, to supply scenery and costumes, all by local amateurs, was the task set its members by the Dundalgan Choral Society at the Town Hall, Dundalk. This achievement was carried through under Mr. J. B. Van Craen's conductorship, and the supervision of Mr. John Wheatley, and the opening performance on Tuesday evening, the first of three, came off with unusual success. The critic went down without any sanguine anticipations, allowing for circumstances, but he was agreeably surprised by the results attained as a whole, and more so in regard to the chorus work, the principals and the orchestra."

"... Mr. Van Craen is a master of choral training. He had over 80 of a chorus, and this well-trained body gave the choral numbers a prominence and effectiveness out of the ordinary."

A Dundalk Man in Palestine.

"A couple of pages of print about Palestine at the present day as seen during the war."

It's rather a startling task, but here goes:

I was sent on a free tour of the East, personally conducted by General Allenby, and after a delightful fortnight on a boat from Marseilles to Alexandria—(It should be a four day trip)—I passed hurriedly from the boat to a train and leaving Alexandria, without getting more than a glimpse of it, reached Kantara, a huge camp in the desert, two miles the far side of the Suez Canal. I stayed there for two days and got heartily sick of the desert, as the food was bad. I noticed that all through the war, one's impressions as to the beauty or otherwise of places coincided exactly with the plentitude or otherwise of food. Four of us took train one night from there and woke up to find we were nearing Belah, a small and pretty oasis—a great relief from the monotony of the desert. We passed Belah and arrived at Gaza where we breakfasted on biscuits and cocoa procured from a Y.M.C.A. hut. Gaza is the place where Samson pulled the Temple down, but the only entry I can find in my diary about it is "small dirty town." (This may be due to the bad breakfast). Eventually we detrained at Junction Station just at the foot of the hills of Palestine, and I joined my battalion there. Coming through the desert the only thing of note was the huge growth of cactus or prickly pear which surrounded the village of Belah, and seemed to be used to fence the different holdings from each other. A most effective fence it makes, and we were all curiosity regarding the first specimens of this plant that we had seen, though we were before long to find cactus so plentiful and ubiquitous that it evoked curses only and no curiosity. However, the desert has been described sufficiently before, and I will pass it by and merely refer to the description of it given by my servant in a letter to his mother:—"The desert! All I can say is that it is simply miles and miles and miles of sweet d—— all."

On the first view, the Hills of Palestine seem very high and imposing, but this is, of course, due to the contrast with the desert one has just passed through. They are really rather small and insignificant. From the desert right on through Palestine the country is simply a succession of hills and gulleys, and flat places are non-existent. Along the coast there is a plain some few miles across, which runs up the whole side of Palestine, but the country, so far as I saw it, consisted simply of a collection of hills of varying shapes and sizes jumbled together and separated by ravines or wadis which form the roadways of the country. Small and large streams flow through most of these ravines during the rainy seasons, and then the traffic gets held up. Some of them have perpetual small streams, and these are blessings indeed in a country where water is a precious and sufficiently rare thing. The hills are rocky and barren at the outskirts, and there is no vegetation at all except the everlasting cactus (wherever I pitched my bivouac I found cactus), and of course the plentiful fig and olive trees. As one goes further into the country the place gets greener and pleasanter and in some of the wadis there is a most luxuriant growth of beautiful shrubs and flowers.

There are innumerable villages, all of them perched on the tops of the hills for purposes of protection against attack and against floods. They consist, as a rule, of hovels built of mud and stone, and with one, two or three large and handsome houses in each village. There are little plots of corn round each village and innumerable goats, but we saw scarcely any cattle. This may have been due to the fact that wherever we went the Turk had been. The inhabitants are Arabs, and both men and women are tall, slender, handsome people, but they live in unspeakable dirt and squalour and their appearance is the best part of them.

We stayed on the outskirts of one village, Suffa, for some five weeks and got to know some of the inhabitants fairly well. Our doctor was a very energetic conscientious man, and he was very shocked at the lack of proper sanitary arrangements in Suffa. He approached the Mukhtar or Mayor of the village and succeeded in getting him to carry out a few rudimentary improvements. The Mukhtar expressed great satisfaction at the change, but alas, when we had left the place for a week the doctor had occasion to return for a day and found that all his improvements had been swept away the moment we had left and they had returned to their original and accustomed filth. The Mukhtar had apparently been under the impression that the new arrangements were a form of punishment, and no doubt he still enjoys fame at the local Urban Council for the way in which he circumvented the mad English doctor.

When Jerusalem was taken we were attacking some ten miles to the west of it and as we pushed on further and further we stayed all the time on the west of the Holy City, and I never got into Jerusalem itself. It is unlikely that I shall ever revisit Palestine, and that I was so near to Jerusalem without visiting it will always be a source of deep regret to me. Some of the officers and men got away on short trips, and competition for places on these leave parties was very keen, though it involved a march of thirty miles each way. Those who succeeded in getting there were very much impressed with the beauty of the churches of the various Christian Religions and especially with the beauty of the Holy Sepulchre, which is in possession of and guarded by the priests of seven different religions. Jerusalem itself is by all accounts a mean and dirty town with narrow filthy streets and, apart from its immense religious and historical interest, a place to be avoided.

Going forward once to reconnoitre some new posts we were taking over, we reached a wadi in which there was a wide and pleasant stream of delightfully pure clean water. Near by stood a small square building with a domed top and on inquiry we learnt that this was the stream where Job had washed and been cleansed of all his sores, and the mosque near by was supposed to mark the spot where he had entered the stream. An enterprising colonel of the Irish Rifles gained a fleeting glory by affixing a notice to this effect to the wall of the mosque and adding that it had been first reached and "discovered" by his battalion.

The climate in Palestine was beautiful. It was a succession of days of the most glorious sunshine, warm, but not oppressively so, and when rain did come, it came in torrents for a couple of days and then went away for months. The rain came at regular periods every year, and one knew when to expect it. Water is sufficient, but not over-plentiful. About 400 yards from each village there are generally one or two wells which supply the inhabitants all the year round. The water is carried from the wells by the women of the village, who do all the rough work, and it was wonderful to see the way in which those women climbed and ran up the hillsides carrying a large pitcher full of water on their heads. An ordinary man would find it a difficult task enough to carry such a weight on level ground, but it never seemed to trouble these ladies.

Polygamy obtains amongst the natives, and two or three wives seemed to be the average number amongst the better off villagers. As in most Eastern countries the women are treated as slaves, and do all the hard work. I am afraid it will be a long time before women doctors, solicitors, barristers, and M.P.'s are known to the Palestine Arabs.

The outstanding feature of Palestine was the supply of oranges. You could get any quantity of them, and they cost less than $\frac{1}{2}d.$ each for huge big juicy fellows. Little boys sold them all along the line of march where water was so scarce. They came from the district round Jaffa, and were a very different fruit to the oranges we get over here. Fresh figs and olives were also plentiful and olive oil cost very little and was used by all the natives as their stock illuminant.

The language spoken throughout Palestine is naturally Arabic. There are one or two Jewish villages, where I presume they speak Hebrew, but I never happened on any of them, and do not know much of their habits. Arabic seemed a fairly simple language, though I never acquired much proficiency in it. I was deterred by the fate of one of our officers, who boasted to us interminably of the wonderful way he had picked up the language. I was with him one day when we went to purchase oranges. I bought mine in the time honoured way by tendering a coin and indicating with my fingers how many oranges I demanded in exchange, but he proceeded to harangue the little boy in his best Arabic. I was listening with admiration at his fluency, when the little boy looked up, grinned broadly, and said "Me no speak English." That officer ceased interpreting for us thenceforward.

The country and climate were healthy enough. The troops suffered greatly from Malaria, but this was practically confined to those who had contracted it in Salonika, and new-comers like myself, who had not visited Salonika, seemed immune. Cuts or abrasions of any kind were dangerous unless given antiseptic treatment at once, as the neglected wound or cut started to fester and become septic at once. Whether this was due to the air or the food I know not, but it was soon clear to everyone that no scratch dare be left uncovered until it was healed.

I spent one Christmas in Palestine before returning to France. I noted it by my diary as follows:—"Rained hard all last night and to-day. Everyone confined perforce to their bivouacs, which are soaking wet. Road is a rushing flood. Everyone miserable, especially the unfortunates whose bivouacs have been washed out. A parcel arrived late this evening. Finished the cake and felt better."

I was glad I saw Palestine and the East, but I am not craving to return. It's a pleasant country and full of interest to a student of history or botany. Unfortunately I am a student of neither, and there are not enough provision shops to satisfy my æsthetic tastes.

A Seventeenth Century History of Louth.

THE document printed below was contained in the Philipps Library (numbered 6685), and on the dispersal of that collection was acquired by Mr. Harding, bookseller, of London, from whom I bought it a short time ago.

It is written on five leaves, with two other leaves blank, measuring 13 ins. by 8 ins., in a fairly legible late seventeenth-century hand. It has evidently been folded in four for a considerable time; but a book-binder has flattened out the leaves, and with a liberal expenditure of blank paper has swollen it out into a volume of very presentable size. One of the two blank leaves, now mutilated (evidently the original outer wrapper), bears the endorsement, twice repeated, "County of Lowth by Robert Downing."¹ There are three different handwritings in these endorsements: one of them is in one hand, the first three words of the second endorsement are in a second hand, and the rest of it in a third hand: all these differ from the hand in which the text is written.

The only clue to the history of the MS. is a pencilled note on one of the bookbinder's blank leaves, "Petty MSS." I cannot, however, identify the handwriting with that of any of the Down Survey documents in the Record Office, in searching which I have to acknowledge the help of Mr. Herbert Wood. Nor can I find anything as to who Robert Downing may have been. The name "Robert Downing, Gent." occurs in a deed, a copy of which is preserved in the Patent Roll, III James II: but no address is given, and there is no evidence connecting him with the author of the MS. From the absence of any honorific prefix or suffix to the name in the endorsement of the MS., I suspect its writer to have been a person comparatively unimportant—possibly a clerk, writing for so much a page.

The people referred to in the text as living at the time, so far as they can be identified, date the document to about 1670-1680: the general appearance of the MS. agrees with this date. Its contents are to some extent disappointing: the author confesses his reliance on Ware for his facts, and when that authority fails him he is at sea. Still, he preserves some local details of interest. I am not aware of any other record of a Round Tower having existed at Louth in the seventeenth century.² The descriptions of this town, as well as of Dundalk and Carlingford, though brief, are vivid. The curious mistake about Smarmor castle, which the author thought at first was an abbey, and its clumsy correction in the MS., suggest that the document was merely a draft meant for a more finished

1. In the second copy of the endorsement "County" is spelt "Countie," "Lowth" is spelt "Louth," and "Robert" is abbreviated to "Robt."

2. Petrie (Eccl. Arch., p. 391) quotes from the Annals of Clonmacnois a record of the fall of the steeple of Louth in A.D. 981: it would thus appear to have been restored.

report: the whole has an air of disorder, as though Downing had put down things as they came into his head, intending later to arrange them systematically. The tradition recorded that Monasterboice had first been a bishopric and afterwards a nunnery shows how completely the memory of its true history had been lost.

Mr. Charles McNeill has given me useful help in the decipherment of some obscurely written words.

In conclusion, I have to say that this document, even though only indirectly connected with the Down Survey, is of a public nature; and as I hold very strong views against public documents, and important antiquities or works of art, remaining in private hands, where they are exposed to the risk of all sorts of domestic accidents, and to ultimate loss in the sale-room, I hereby beg to present it to the Academy.

An Editor's Farewell.

"We have never hesitated to stand up for the right when we felt that public opinion was with us. We have always protested against the wrong when we saw it to be unpopular. We have stated truth when we happened to know the facts, and have never hesitated to resort to fiction when we have been convinced of its superior validity. We have never employed the lumbering and tedious methods of demonstration when we felt we could rely on the credulity of our readers; we have never asked for gratitude when we have found self-satisfaction the surer road to happiness."

O'Neill at Home.

EXPERIENCES OF AN ENGLISHMAN THREE HUNDRED YEARS AGO.

AMONG the favourites of Queen Elizabeth who shared with Raleigh and Essex "the sunshine of those eyes-divine that does illumine the universe" were many Irish gentlemen. One of them, Donald MacCartie, the base but brave son of the Earl of Clancar, went many times "out upon his keeping"—that is, into rebellion, and was as often forgiven. He it was who risked his life, earned attainder, and had his castle of Dunmanway besieged, all through the killing of his beloved wolf-hound by the Queen's host. But the greatest of all these Irish favourites was Hugh O'Neill, the Earl of Tyrone. He had spent his boyhood in England, and was the curled darling of the Court. But as the Queen afterwards truly said of him, she had "sharpened a needle wherewith to pierce her own side." For scarce had he set foot upon his native heath than he assumed all the ancient rights and customs of "The O'Neill," which were more to him than coronets and the smiles of the Queen.

Among the many romantic exploits of his chequered life was his elopement with Mabel Bagenal, the beautiful sister of Sir Henry Bagenal, governor of the Queen's garrison at Newry. Tyrone's letter to Elizabeth on the incident is a marvellous combination of loyalty to the person of the Queen and insolent indifference as to the action of her Ministers in Ireland. In the Nugæ Antiquæ, a collection of original papers on Irish affairs at the close of the sixteenth century, there is a letter from Sir John Harrington describing his visits to O'Neill. He gives an admirable picture of the interior of an Irish nobleman's house at the time. Sir John Harrington, in another of his writings, The Journey to Connaught, refutes the statements by Froude and other English writers, who would have us believe that the native Irish lived in a state of semi-barbarism in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries. "The Iryshrie," he says, "do appeare in the upper sort very kind and hospitable to all new-comers, as I did well experience in this countrie even so much as if my own lands were here I would hazard my dwelling with them for life. I was often well entertained, and in some part got ill-will for speaking in praise of their civil usages among our own commanders, whom I often told that, though I was sent out to fight with some, there did appear no reason for my not eating with others. I was well-used, and therefore am in duty bound to speake well of the Iryshire." So John Harrington seems to have been a Thomas Drummond of his day, who served England and Ireland well. The sketch he gives of O'Neill's home is in his report of a journey into the North of Ireland, written to Justice Cary by Sir John Harrington, 1599. "Having expected shipping till the 8th of this month, and meeting with none convenient, in respect that all were take up with sick soldiers, or with my Lord Lieutenant's horses, I was desirous to make some use of the time that I should stay here, and therefore was easily persuaded to go with Sir William Warren, my learned friend, with whom I had formerly been acquainted in England, and to see some part of the realm northward, and the arch-rebel himself with whom Sir William was to treat. But staying at Dundalk till the 15th of this month, and no news certain of the earl's coming, I went to see the Newry, and from thence to D(C)arlingford by the Narrow Water, and was hindered by waters, that I could not come back to Sir William Warren before his first meeting with the Earl of Tyrone, which was on the 17th day; what time, how far they proceeded, I know not, but it appears that the Earl was left in good disposition, because he kept his hour so well the next morning. And as I found after Sir William had told him of me, and given such a report of me, above my desert, that next day, when I came, the Earl used far greater respect to me than I expected, and began debasing his own manner of hard life, comparing himself to wolves that fill their bellies sometimes, and fast as long as it; then excused himself to me that he could not better call to mind myself and some of my friends that had done him courtesy in England, and been off' in his company at my Lord of Ormond's, saying those troubles had made him forget almost all his friends.

"After this he fell to private communications with Sir William to the effecting of the matters began the day before, to which I thought it not fit to intrude myself, but took occasion the while to entertain his two sons, by proving them in their learning, and their tutors, which were one Frayar Nangle, a Franciscan, and a younger scholar, whose name I know not; and finding the children of good manly spirit, their age between thirteen and fifteen in English cloths, like a nobleman's sons; with short garkins, and gold lace; of a good cheerful aspect, freckled-faced, not tall of stature, but strong and well set, both of them their English tongue.

"I gave them, not without the advice of Sir William Warren, my English translation of Ariosto, which I got at Dublin; which their teachers took very thankfully, and soon after showed it to the earl, who called to see it openly, and would needs hear some part of it read. I turned as if it had been by chance, to the beginning of the 45th canto, and some other passages, which he seemed to like so well that he solemnly swore his boys should read all the book over to him.

"Then they fell to communication again and calling me to him, he said that I should witness and tell my lord lieutenant how, against all his confederates' wills, Sir William had drawn him to a longer cessation, which he would never have agreed to, but in confidence of my lord's honourable dealing with him, for, saith he, now is my harvest time, now have my men their six weeks' pay aforehand, that they may have nothing to do but fight, and if I omit this opportunity, and then you shall prepare to fight me in the meantime, I may be condemned for a fool.

"Also one pretty thing I noted, that the paper being drawn for him to sign, and he signing it with O'Neill, Sir William (though with very great difficulty) made him to next write it, and subscribe Hugh Tyrone. Then we broke our fasts with him, and at his meal he was very merry, and it was my hap to thwart one of his priests in argument, to which he gave reasonable good ear, and some approbation. He drank to my lord's health, and bade me tell him that he loved him, and acknowledged his cessation had been very honourably kept. He made, likewise, solemn protestation that he was not ambitious, but sought only safety of his life, and pardon of his conscience, without which he would not live, though the Queen should give him Ireland.

"Then he asked of Sir Henry Harrington, and said he heard he had much wrong to have an imputation of want of courage for the last defeat at Arklow, protesting that himself had known Sir Henry serve as valiantly as ever any man did, naming the time, place, and persons, all known to Sir William Warren. Other pleasant and idle tales were needless and impertinent; or to describe his fern table, fern forms, spread under the stately canopy of heaven. His guard, for the most part, were beardless boys without shirts, who, in the frost, wade as familiarly through rivers as water-spaniels. With what charm such a master makes them love him I know not, but if he bid come, they come; if go, they do go; if he say do this, they do it. He makes apparent show to be inclinable to peace, and some of his nearest followers have it buzzed amongst them that some league of England with Spain, or Scotland, I know not where, may endanger them. But himself, no doubt, waits only to hear what my lord lieutenant intends, and according to that will bend his course.

"Fryar Nangle swears all oaths that he will do all the good he can, and that he is guiltless of the heinous crimes he is indicted of; for if he had his pardon there might be made good use of him. This is all I remember any way worthy the writing to you; not doubting but Sir William Warren, that hath the sole charge of this business, will give you much better account of the mightier affairs than I, that only went to see their manner of parting.—I remain in much duty,

"JOHN HARRINGTON."

Your Suppliant and daily Orator Marcus Lord Viscount Dungannon, brother and heir and likewise administrator of the goods of Lewis Lord Viscount Dungannon, deceased, as also son and heir and administrator of the goods of Ann late Lady Viscountess Dungannon, deceased, who died intestate, sheweth that your Orator did formerly prefer his bill in this Hon. Court against Jeremiah Smith, Esq., and Robert Pooley, and did there set forth that the said Lord Lewis was in his lifetime possessed of a considerable estate to the value of £1,400 per annum in Dundalk, Co. Louth, and other parts of this Kingdom, and that the said late Lady Viscountess Dungannon was in her own right possessed of an estate to the value of £300 or £400 per annum near Dundalk. And that the said Lord Lewis for some years before 1688 was under age and that the said Lady Anne his mother was his guardian and did repose confidence in John Smith, Gent., deceased, and did employ him as well as on her own behalf to receive the rents of the premises as Steward, Agent, or Receiver to the said late Lord Lewis and Lady Ann. And that the said John Smith for several years before 1691 received said rents, issues and profits of the said several estates, and took several bonds, bills and other security for rent and arrears and converted the same to his own use. And the said late Lord and Lady Dungannon being in England during the late troubles in extreme want they desired the said John Smith to supply them with cash, yet he said he had not one penny and "the Plaintiff out of pity gave him a guiney" though he had but little money to spare and the Plaintiff (your Orator) used his endeavour for the said John Smith's eldest son the said Jeremiah Smith though the said John Smith then had £700 or £800, £250 or £300 whereof he lent to Downham Cope for which the said Cope gave him extraordinary beneficial bargain in 1689 to take effect after the reduction of this kingdom of Ireland. And the said John Smith came over with the English army in 1689 and was employed in the train thereof and then met several of the tenants at Dundalk and received several arrears of rent and bonds for same in his own name for the use of the said late Lord and Lady Dungannon and converted said money to his own use. And the said John Smith soon after made his will and appointed the said Jeremiah Smith to be his executor and soon after died and several bonds and other writings relating to the estate came to the hands of the said Jeremiah Smith which did belong to the said late Lord and Lady Dungannon. And the said Jeremiah Smith before and after took several bonds and did not account for them, but pretends the said late Lord and Lady Dungannon were indebted to him for Receivers' fees though he will be found to be considerably in debt to your Orator. And that if the said late Lord Lewis contracted any debt with the said John Smith it was during his minority that then your Orator was willing to account with the Defendants. And the said Jeremiah Smith hath commenced a suit at law against your Orator and hath filed two declarations against him as heir-at-law. That the said Jeremiah Smith though frequently requested to refuses to come to account. To which Bill the said Jeremiah Smith hath filed his answer, and his several transactions since the said filing of said Bill have come to your Orator's ears. Your Orator is advised to have the aid of this Hon. Court by way of Supplemental Bill in order to discover the several new matters which will be material on the hearing of this Cause. Your Orator therefore humbly prays that the Defts. hereafter mentioned may answer this your Orator's Supplemental Bill. Your Orator sheweth that Elinor Smith, widow of the said John Smith, hath transacted some of the business of her said late husband and that some of the deeds, rent rolls, bonds, and so forth belonging to the said late Lord and Lady Dungannon have come to her hands and she doth refuse to give same to your Orator. Your Orator further sheweth that the said Lord Lewis came of age on 7 April, 1684, and the said John Smith continued to act as his agent and should account for the two parts of the rents of Dundalk for 3½ years, which amounted to £3,229 6s. 8d. The said John Smith continued to be agent to the said late Lord and Lady Dungannon till the late troubles began and the said John Smith after 1st November, 1688, distrained most of the tenants on the said estate that were in arrear of rent and did receive most of the half year's rent and did press the tenants for same alleging that the said late Lord and Lady Dungannon were in great want of money in England. The said John Smith the said rents soon after went to England himself and carried £1,500 with him to London where the said late Lord and Lady Dungannon were living when he told the said Lord and Lady that he had lost all he had by the raparees in the Kingdom of Ireland, and that the country where the said estate was situate was wholly waste and depopulated and that no rents were to be obtained, that he was forced to fly and leave the arrears of rent in the hands of the tenants and that he was reduced to great poverty and he told your Orator "he wanted a coate and was an object of pity and compassion." And under colour of pretence the said John Smith whilst in London in the said year 1689 got one Captain William Shaw to draw up some method for his accounts and prevailed upon the said Lady Dungannon to consent thereto; alleging that there was £200 odd arrears due by the tenants for May, 1688, and that he received but £50 of rent which fell due in November tho he might have received all the rent due in May, 1688, and most of the rent due at All Saints', 1688. Your Orator further sheweth that he hath since discovered that there were several persons returned in arrear for their May and November rent in 1688 by the said John Smith in the account which he pretended to give to the said Wm. Shaw, who have since proved and are ready to show they paid the said rents so charged to be in arrear, they having acquittances from the said John Smith, but they have lost the same in the late troubles. And there are some other persons returned in arrear by the said pretended account to May, 1688, in much more money than is charged in the rent rolls of the said estate. And the said Jeremiah Smith saith he will take advantage of the said imperfect method of accounting so drawn up in England in 1689, though the same was without the consent of the said Lord Lewis, albeit it was impossible to audit the same without the rent rolls and other vouchers, and the said Jeremiah Smith doth refuse to come to any account for the said rents so received out of the said estate in Dundalk since the said Lord Lewis came of age. And the said Jeremiah Smith in combination with the said Elinor Smith do refuse to produce the said John Smith's books of entry to show receipts for rents paid and do insist that your Orator should be content with the articles of account so delivered as aforesaid. Your Orator further sheweth that since his return to this kingdom of Ireland he hath been informed of many errors in the said account and that the said John Smith was in particular indebted for his own holding to the said Lord and Lady Dungannon in £41 5s. od. payable on 1 November, 1688, yet did not charge himself in the said pretended account. And further sheweth that the said John Smith received from Patrick Dowdall £19 odd for his holding in the said estate at November, 1688, from Lawrence Tallon £11 arrears for May, 1688, from John Bleek, gent. £28, and from John Babe, gent., £35, both All Saints' rent 1688, and yet the said John Smith did not charge same in the said pretended account. And the said John Smith distrained several parcels of "rough rend. tallow" from Richard Marmion to the value of £60 and converted same to his own use for rent due yet did not charge same but returned the same in arrear. Your Orator further sheweth that the said John Smith charged John Graham with arrear of £6 for May rent, 1688, though by the said pretended rent roll the said John Graham is but charged with £3 15s. od. to the said half year. And James Dalton is charged with arrears of £10 for May, 1688, though the said James Dalton was but charged with £5 10s. od. for the said half year. and doth charge Richd Dawson with arrears of £22 for May and All Saints', 1688, which the said Dawson paid to him, although the said Richard Dawson "was one of the most responsible tennants on the said estate," and although the said Richard Dawson had a freehold estate of £100 per annum. And charged several other sums for All Saints', 1687, all which are errors and your Orator doubteth not that there are many others of like nature but the same are concealed from your Orator by the detaining of the rent book and other papers relating to your Orator's estate in Dundalk, although your Orator hath frequently requested the said Jeremiah and Elinor Smith to account with him yet they refuse which is contrary to equity and good conscience and tends to your Orator's injury unless relieved by the Hon. Court. Now so may it please your Lordship that the said Jeremiah and Elinor Smith well knowing your Orator's witnesses who could prove the truth of the premises aforesaid are either dead or gone to remote parts beyond the sea and so be properly relieved before your Lordship in this Hon. Court. To the end therefore that your Orator may be relieved in this Hon. Court the said Jeremiah and Elinor Smith may bring to this Hon. Court all the said account books and writings relating to the premises and may prove the truth of the aforesaid charges and where they last saw the said account books relating to the said Lord and Lady Dungannon's estate concerning payments received by the said John Smith for the same, and may set forth the value of the said tallow received from the said Marmion for rent and to whom same was sold and whether the said Dawson paid any rents to May and Nov., 1688, or since the late troubles or was the same paid to the said John and Jeremiah Smith and what account the said Dawson or any other person paid. And may set forth what money the said John Smith brought into England and what money he lent there to the said Cope and what was the bargain between him and the said Cope and what was the advantage he was to get from the said Cope on the reduction of this kingdom. And what other advantageous bargains the said John Smith made there. And what military employment your Orator was then in. And whether he did importune "yr Or. to give him A Guinea to buy him A Coate." And whether they are willing to come to an account with your Orator relating to the premises. May it therefore please your Lordship to grant to your Orator not only H.M.'s gracious Writ of Supoena directed to the said Jeremiah and Elinor Smith to appear before your Lordship in this Hon. Court to answer the said premises but also Her Majesty's Writ of Ducatis vobiscum requiring them to bring to this Hon. Court all deeds evidences and escripts and writings relating to the said estate.

And your Orator will ever pray.

Abstract of Chancery Bill.

MARY BOOTH v. ANN VISCOUNTESS DUNGANNON, ENSIGN JOHN REYNOLDS
JOHN SMITH, and WILLIAM SHAW.

Bill entered 24th May, 1687.

Your Oratrix Mary Booth late of Carlingford Co. Louth widow and relict of Thomas Booth late of Carlingford aforesaid, deceased, and administratrix of the said Thomas Booth sheweth that in the year 1666 the said Thomas Booth was employed by the Right Hon. Marcus late Lord Viscount Dungannon to sell let and receive the rents issues and profits of the townlands and tenements belonging to the corporation and liberties of Carlingford Co. Louth and also such of the lands called Primate's Lands and of the tithes as the said Lord Viscount Dungannon held by lease in the said liberties and likewise the town and lands of Castletowne Cooly in said county which he also held by lease and being so employed the said Thomas Booth from time to time rendered a true account of every half year's rent roll to Major John Reynolds then Chief Steward to the said Lord Viscount Dungannon and since deceased. That the said Marcus Lord Viscount Dungannon died in 1669 when the Right Hon. Dame Ann Viscountess Dungannon the widow and administratrix of the said late Lord Viscount Dungannon pretending that the said Major John Reynolds had not perfected his accounts either with the said late Viscount or with her Ladyship since did bring to an account Ensign John Reynolds, Esq., executor of the will of the said Major John Reynolds, for the said defalcation of the said Major John Reynolds. And the said Ensign John Reynolds not being able to render so exact an account to her Ladyship in all particulars which the said Major John Reynolds was accountable and among the rest of the accounts of Carlingford, Cooly and the Primate's Lands which the said Thomas Booth was accountable for to the said Major John Reynolds she the said Viscountess Dungannon being informed that the said Thomas Booth was in arrear of his accounts to the said Major John Reynolds at the said Major John Reynolds' decease who died in November, 1679, did seize upon the said Thomas Booth's cattle, sheep and horses to the value of £30 ster. Your suppliant further sheweth that the said Thomas Booth in his lifetime finding himself accountable to the said Viscountess Dungannon for the time since the said Major John Reynolds died he the said Thomas Booth in order to regain his cattle and thereby preserve himself, his wife and children from famishing was necessitated together with his son Ralph Booth to enter into a bond to the said Viscountess Dungannon in the penal sum of £500 conditioned that the said Thomas Booth should come to an account with the said Viscountess Dungannon and what should be found justly in balance of the account duly stated (if any should be) that the said cattle should be forthcoming to answer the same whereupon the said cattle being restored and the said Thomas Booth preparing his accounts in order to perform the conditions of the said bond for £500 she the said Viscountess Dungannon in combination with the said John Reynolds executor of the said Major John Reynolds, John Smith, William Shaw, and with several other persons did seize upon the said Thomas Booth's corn which he had in his haggard and of his household goods to the value of £38 ster. whereby the said Thomas Booth was reduced to a very deplorable condition and rather than disperse his family to rely upon the charity of their friends

HIBERNIAN HALL, BLACKROCK, Opened 15th August, 1919.

was necessitated to enter into a second bond to pay the said £38 and which his two sons Ralph Booth and John Booth had to become severally bound with him. But the said confederates still suggesting there was not enough to satisfy the sum in arrear pretended to be £500 did again seize upon some of the cattle as at first and made choice of one Thomas Babe and Luke Babe two of the tenants of the said Viscountess Dungannon to appraise the said cattle, corn, and household goods, who did so but not above the third of their just value they having the said bonds of £500 and £38. And the said Thomas Booth suddenly after—that is to say, in April, 1680, to ascertain what the said Viscountess Dungannon could charge him upon his accounts, did offer to account with her, which she would not accept alleging that the accounts would be more conveniently stated and audited in Dublin where the said William Shaw her agent lived to which the said Thomas Booth had to consent and in order to come to Dublin where instead of accounting for the time since the said Major John Reynolds died being about three years to the time of seizing the said cattle and goods and for which only and now the said Ann Viscountess Dungannon desired an account at the beginning, till the said confederates by frequent suggestion to the said Viscountess that they could make out the said pretended arrears of £500 who thereupon contrived a charge against the said Thomas Booth of £393 16s. 7d. for which they alledged the said Thomas Booth was accountable during his said employment being about 13½ years, thinking that after so long a time he could not give an account of such a sum and especially for so much thereof as was payable all that time out of his own holding having no particular acquaintance given him by the said Major John Reynolds for it other than it was complicated in the whole account of the rents of Carlingford. And they also knowing that a very considerable part of the said accounts did consist of disbursements made by the said Thomas Booth in necessary repairing maintaining and supplying the several mansion houses of the said late Lord Viscount and Viscountess Dungannon as well in ROSE TREVOR Dundalk as in Dublin and also in defraying the wages of servants and they the said Viscountess and her confederates relying upon the said Thomas Booth's disability and poverty after the loss of all his sustenance and upon the difficulty of so intricate an account as by them contrived they continued the said pretended charge to be due out of Carlingford, Cooly and the Primate's Lands during the said 13½ years except only the lands of Cooly for which there was a charge of 2½ years for which time it was alleged that the said lands were not set, the said Thomas Booth having no orders to set the same from the said Major John Reynolds otherwise by reason of the Herring fishing in the liberties of the said town of Carlingford being so uncertain upon which the advantage of improving the rent of these lands did altogether depend in so much that when the fishing went away a great part of the said town and liberties of Carlingford became waste and what was set did not yield near the improved rent as it did in the fishing time which the said Viscountess Dungannon and her confederates not considering made up the charge of Carlingford accounts alone (which they allege amounts to £2,492 11s. 1d. during the said 13½ years) by computation not only of the full improved rent it yielded when the said fishing was at its best but also have added to the said gross charge a further supplement of half year's rent of the said lands next immediately before the said Thomas Booth was in any way therein concerned which supplements made up a surcharge (as the parties term it) of £326 13s. 7d., part of the above charge of Carlingford. And by the like contrivance made up the second part of their said gross charge out of the said Primate's Lands and tithes consisting of £301 6s. 6d. And also the third and last part of the same gross charge out of the lands of Cooly amounting to £399 5s. 0d., which said several sums make up a total gross charge of £3,193 16s. 7d. above mentioned. And the said Thos. Booth for the sake of peace did importune the said Viscountess Dungannon to account with him here in the City of Dublin as before set forth notwithstanding his constant attendance in Dublin for 14 weeks as great charges to himself and others to settle with the said Viscountess and her agents, but would come to no agreement except to allow for the said Thomas Booth's receipts amounting to £998 11s. 2d. and refused to allow for any disbursements or for any arrears of rent and gave out that the said Thomas Booth was in arrear in £500. Whereas really and truly the said Thomas Booth's acquittances, disbursements and arrears due were allowed by the said Viscountess when she first seized his cattle and the sum of £326 13s. 7d. surcharge deducted which the said Thomas Booth was in no way concerned or accountable for by the reason above mentioned that the said Viscountess was satisfied of the said gross charge of £3,193 16s. 7d. above charged which she and the said confederates forceing upon view of the said Thomas Booth's accounts did refuse to allow the same well knowing that if they came to a just agreement they would have to restore the said cattle and bonds so unjustly taken, nor would they come to any just agreement with the said Thomas Booth in his lifetime nor with your Suppliant since his death alleging that the said disbursements must be proved during so long a tract of time which is impossible for your Suppliant to do. Your Suppliant further sheweth that the said accounts being thus left unperfected the said Viscountess and her confederates did the fourth time—that is to say, in August, 1680, soon after the death of the said Thomas Booth seize your Suppliant's said corn in the field, being the growth of 18 acres of good clean wheat, 4 acres of neashlen, one acre and a slang of beaves, 2 acres of oats, 4 acres of pease—all worth four score pounds ster., but by them valued at £18 and was taken away for the use of the said Viscountess to use notwithstanding that your Suppliant's son and husband was in his lifetime charged in his account with the rent of said lands for that year, and the said Viscountess threatened a suit upon the said bonds against your Suppliant and other the joint obligees in same who for fear of said suit and being left with nothing for support ever since your Suppliant has to rely upon the charity of her friends. Your Suppliant further sheweth that during the time the said Thomas Booth had been concerned in setting the said lands of Carlingford he made several improvements from time to time to the value of four score pounds, and the said late Lord Viscount Dungannon repeatedly assured the said Thomas Booth for his services did promise that he should sit rent free in his the said Thomas Booth's holding in the said liberties of Carlingford (which is charged in the said accounts) being worth £30 per annum which the said Thomas Booth did content himself without demanding any salary during the said 13½ years service, which amounts to a sum of £405, and no allowance has been made for the same nor for the corn and cattle and household goods taken away in all amounting to £108 adding thereto the damages done by the said oppression and the constant fear your Suppliant is in of the security to the said lands of being sold. All which proceedings of said Viscountess Dungannon and her confederates are contrary to all equity and good conscience.

To the end your Suppliant may be relieved in the premises that your Suppliant may be discharged from the said pretended accounts that the said Viscountess may be compelled to make full satisfaction to your Suppliant for the said cattle, corn and goods, improvements, and the service of the said Thomas Booth. And that the said John Smith, William Shaw and other their confederates who are concerned with the said Viscountess Dungannon and the said Ensign John Reynolds. May if please your Honours to grant to your Suppliant H.M.'s gracious writ of subpoena directed to the said Defendants requiring them to appear in this Hon. Court of Chancery and there set forth whether the said Viscountess Dungannon was not content when she first called the said Thomas Booth to account and was content to an account from the said Thomas Booth from the time the said Major John Reynolds died to the time the said Thomas Booth's cattle were seized, being the last three year's account. Was not the said Viscountess well satisfied to allow for all disbursements made by the said Thomas Booth and the arrears of rent. Did not Sir Hans Hamilton in his lifetime pay to the said Viscountess Dungannon or to the late Viscount Dungannon several sums of money and how much in discharge of her rents as they became due for such of the said Sir Hans Hamilton's company of foot as were tenants to the said Viscount and Viscountess in and about Carlingford. And whether the surcharge above-mentioned of £326 13s. 7d. was not due before the said Thomas Booth became concerned for the said late Viscount Dungannon.

TABLE FOR MEASURING STANDING WHEAT.

The following table gives a formula for measuring with sufficient accuracy the amount of wheat on an acre before it is harvested.

2 oz. per square yard =	10-084	bushels per acre.
2½ " " " "	=	12-564 " "
3 " " " "	=	15-114 " "
3½ " " " "	=	17-634 " "
4 " " " "	=	20-164 " "
4½ " " " "	=	22-684 " "
5 " " " "	=	25-20 " "
6 " " " "	=	30-25 " "
7 " " " "	=	35-284 " "
8 " " " "	=	40-334 " "

Make a wood or iron frame one yard square; let it down carefully over the standing grain and then shell and weigh all the grain on the straws within the frame.

STATISTICS OF THE COUNTY OF LOUTH.

LOUTH county, the smallest in Ireland, bounded on the east by the Irish Sea, on the west by the counties of Monaghan and Meath, on the north by Carlingford Bay and the county of Armagh, and on the south by that of Meath. Its greatest length in direction of south by west is twenty-eight miles; and its greatest breadth west by north is eighteen; comprehending an area of 202,731 acres; of which 80,216 are under tillage; 91,591 in pasture land; 4,317 plantations; 25,910 occupied by towns waste, bog, mountain, &c.; and 697 covered by water.

Prior to the Union, Louth sent ten representatives to the Irish Parliament; two for the county at large, and two each for the boroughs of Ardee, Carlingford, Dundalk and Dunleer. At the period referred to, all the boroughs were disfranchised except Dundalk which, until 1885, sent one member to the Imperial Parliament. Prior to the passing of the Parliamentary Registration (Ireland) Act, 1885, the constituency for the entire County numbered only 2,128. Until 1918 the County was divided, and named North and South. North Louth (including Dundalk) had 6 polling places:—Dundalk, Hackballscross, Ravensdale, Carlingford, Louth, and Dromiskin, with in 1915 a constituency of 5,701 Parliamentary voters; total, including Local Government Voters, 7,066. South Louth (including Drogheda) had eight polling places, viz.:—Castlebellingham, Ardee, Dunleer, Collon, Mell, Termonfeckin, Drogheda and Reaghstown, with a constituency of 4,970 Parliamentary Voters; total, including Local Government Voters, 6,557. Its Representatives 1916-18 were—Mr. P. J. Whitty, North Louth; Mr. Joseph Nolan, South Louth. By the Representation of the People Act, 1918, the two divisions are merged into one, returning one member for the County. There are now—Parliamentary Electors, 32,077. The member now sitting is J. J. O'Kelly.

Population of the Parliamentary Division:—

1901, 65,820; 1911, 63,402,—decrease, 2,418.

DUNDALK.

DUNDALK is a prosperous maritime assize town, and municipal borough, in the parish and barony of its name, and the capital of the county of Louth, 55 miles N. from Dublin, 58½ s.s.w. from Belfast, 23 N. from Drogheda, 15 s.e. by E. from Castleblayney, the like distance E.N. from Carrickmacross, 14 w.s.w. from Carlingford, and 12½ s. from Newry (rail distances). It is seated on the south side of the Castletown river, near the shore of a fine bay, to which it gives its name, in a valley surrounded by rich enclosures, backed by a bold outline of mountains, particularly those to the east and north. The river is crossed by a 3-arch bridge, erected in 1822, at a cost of £5,000, and which is now considered more or less unsafe.

Dundalk was anciently a walled and fortified town, having towers and castles which have long since been superseded by modern and more commodious and substantial dwellings. It was a royal city in the time of Edward II., when Robert Bruce, King of Scotland, taking advantage of the divisions which at that time existed in England, sent over an army of Scots under his brother Edward, who, being assisted by the malcontents of the day, entered the English pale, and plundered all the cities and towns on his way to Dundalk, where he caused himself to be proclaimed king, and reigned for the space of one year. The English monarch having appeased his domestic troubles, sent over an army under Lord Bermingham, and in the engagement which ensued, Bruce lost the battle and his life, and was buried in the neighbouring churchyard of Faughart, where also is St. Brigid's well.

Dundalk is a borough by prescriptive right, and possessed writs or charters from Edward III., Richard II., Henry IV., Henry V., Henry VI., Edward IV., Henry VIII., Charles II., and James II.

About a mile west of the town stands the ancient castle of Castletown or Castletown-Bellew, a square strongly built edifice, four storeys in height, with embattled towers. It was a place of great importance, and commanded the pass to Dundalk during the wars between the Anglo-Normans and the Irish. Spiral stone stairs lead to the top of the building, from which a rich and extensive view is obtained seawards, as well as inland. At a short distance south from the castle rises the hill of Dundalgan, on the summit of which is a remarkable mound of earthwork, surmounted by a fosse and entrenchments, and is known as having been the stronghold of Cuchulainn in the olden time. The centre of the fort is occupied by a castellated mansion originally built in 1780 by "The Pirate" Byrne. It was greatly modernised and altered by the late Vesey Dawson, about the year 1836. The Dún was in 1910 secured by the enterprise of a few enthusiastic local antiquarians who have transferred it to the Louth Archaeological Society, and thus preserved it to the public for all time as one of the most interesting national monuments of Ireland. It is now open to the public as a museum.

An extensively and finely wooded demesne borders the town on the west side, in which once stood a mansion in which it is stated William III. rested on his march from the north to the Boyne. This house has recently been replaced by a handsome building, erected by the late Mr. V. S. Carroll.

DUNDALK PUBLIC BUILDINGS.

The Court-house, in which the Assizes and County and Borough Courts are held, stands prominently in the Market-square, built in 1815, and presents a highly ornamental appearance, its front elevation being copied from the temple of Theseus at Athens; on the opposite side of the square is the Market-house, in which is the old assembly room. The District Prison, built in 1857, is at the southern outskirts, and is in every way well adapted, its internal arrangements being carried out on the separate and silent system. The County Infirmary stands in the same locality with the gaol, and in a healthy, open situation: it is supported by a county grant, aided by local charitable donations and subscriptions. The Municipal Building, erected in 1859 at a cost of £8,000, is a handsome structure, and contains the Town Hall, Theatre, Chamber of Commerce, spacious Public Hall, and other offices. The Free Public Library and Reading Rooms are in premises formerly occupied as a Grammar school, in Seatown. The Technical Schools offer facilities for the free education of the people. The fine Electric Power Station adjoins the School.

The Protestant church of St. Nicholas is an unpretentious ancient structure, with ivy-mantled tower (in which is clock with four dials) surmounted by a graceful wooden copper-sheathed spire. There are five Roman Catholic churches, viz. : St. Patrick's noble stone structure, designed by its architect, Mr. Duff, upon the model of King John's College, Cambridge. A beautiful tower has been added, erected to the memory of Mr. John Hamill, J.P.,—a man who by his industry and enterprise became one of the most prominent merchants in Dundalk. St. Nicholas' Catholic Church has been recently enlarged, and a new tower erected, thus adding greatly to its already handsome appearance. St. Joseph's (the Redemptorist Fathers) is at once a striking and handsome structure, possessing a clock and a fine peal of bells. The church of the Dominican Fathers, St. Malachy's, situate at the Southern end, is a neat spacious building ; but until the tower and spire are complete, this sacred edifice will not show to advantage. The Convent attached is at once tasteful and spacious. The Church of the Marist Fathers, recently enlarged and beautiful pillars of Galway marble introduced ; but the building is surrounded by dwelling-houses that it is almost hidden from view. If one or two of those adjoining were removed and the open space planted, together with St. Mary's road, it would be a great improvement. There are likewise Presbyterian and Methodist churches, built in good taste. The Educational establishments are numerous ; prominent amongst which stands the Dundalk Educational Institution, at present closed as a school. The Endowed Schools Commissioners have changed the endowment of the old Grammar school into open scholarships for pupils of all denominations belonging to Dundalk. St. Mary's College, greatly enlarged, conducted by the Marist Fathers ; the Christian Brothers, together with several National School connected with the different religious denominations ; and others of a private description, afford ample opportunity for instruction. The new buildings of the Technical School form a striking feature adjoining the Free Library.

DUNDALK LOCAL GOVERNMENT.

The municipal arrangements of the town are under the control of the Urban District Council elected under the Local Government Act, 1898. Water has been introduced, main sewers throughout, and the various streets are clean and well kept. Private enterprise has also contributed much to the general improved appearance of the town, by the erection of several handsome and substantial buildings, on sites formerly occupied by others of an inferior class. Clanbrassil street, Earl street, Francis street, Church street, Crowe street, Bridge street, and Park street, are the principal business thoroughfares, in which are situate many modern and substantial buildings. Many model artisans dwellings have been erected. Trees have been planted in the principal squares and streets thus beautifying the place, and Roden place, St. Mary's road, Castle Road and Seatown avenue will in a short time present quite a Continental aspect.

AREA AND POPULATION.

The parish of Dundalk which has an area of 6,332 acres, contained in 1861, 12,731 inhabitants, of which the town numbered 10,360; in 1871, the parish numbered 12,874 persons, 11,616 belonging to the town; in 1881, 11,974; in 1891, 14,308, of which 12,449 belonged to the town; in 1901, 14,982, the township numbering 13,067. A Census was taken on the 2nd April, 1911, when the population was 13,128.

FAIRS AND MARKETS.

Fairs are held monthly, on the third Wednesday and a general fair on the 17th May. The Market, which is abundantly supplied, is held on Monday, and a pork market on Wednesday.

RAILWAYS AND SHIPPING.

Railway communication with all parts of the country is established by the Great Northern Railway, the goods and passenger stations and extensive locomotive works being close to the town. A line of railway from Dundalk to Greenore Harbour, in Carlingford Lough, was opened in 1873, and a special daily service of steam boats to and from Holyhead organized by the London and North-Western Railway Company.

Powerful steamers belonging to the Dundalk and Newry Steam-Packet Company are constantly employed in the conveyance of passengers, cattle, and merchandise between this port and Glasgow and Liverpool. The principal imports are coal, timber, iron, jute, flour, Indian corn, tobacco, stationery, bacon, soap, oil, tallow, groceries of all kinds, woollen goods, and ironmongery of every description; its exports are generally agricultural produce—oats, barley, wheat, flax, grass seeds, hay, butter, flour, meal, cattle, sheep, pigs, bricks, timber, whiskey, ales, porter, poultry and eggs. The manufacture of linen, mineral waters, pinafores and aprons, metal castings, steam engines, lattice bridges, &c., yeast, flour, meal and tobacco is carried on; and there is also an extensive distillery, flour mills, three large brick works, two breweries, and two iron works. The harbour has undergone great improvement, and has been in charge of Commissioners since 1837; upwards of £40,000 have been spent in the improvement of the river. Vessels drawing 16 feet can discharge at the quays, by steam cranes into waggons and trucks running in connection with the Great Northern Railway (Ireland) and the London and North-Western Railway. The channel is thoroughly lighted and buoyed.

CASTLEBLAYNEY.—Population in 1871, 1,809; in 1881, 1,814; in 1891, 1,72

A prosperous market town. Market Day—Wednesday. Pork market—Tuesday. Corn and Seed Markets—Tuesday and Friday. Fair Days (Pigs)—Tuesday before 1st Wednesday; Cattle—First Wednesday in each month. Flax Market—First and middle Wednesday of each month. On the south-east side of the town lies the beautiful demesne of Lord Francis Pelham Clinton Hope, which was the summer residence of His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught in 1900. It is open to the public between the hours of 10 a.m. and sunset, and is largely patronized by picnic parties. The scenery is unique, and few places, if any, in Ireland can excel it for wood and water. There are about 300 acres of wood, and Muckno Lake contains about 1000 building. The Blayney alms-houses are built outside the boundary of the town, on the road leading to Carrickmacross. They were built and endowed by will of the last Lord Blayney, in 1877

THE DEAF AND DUMB ALPHABET.

WHEN A MAN DIES WITHOUT LEAVING A WILL, HOW IS HIS PROPERTY DIVIDED?

The following are the Rules by which the Personal Estates of English Persons, and the Movable Estates of Scotch Persons dying without leaving a will, are distributed. No nearer relations are supposed to exist than those named. Where an asterisk (*) is prefixed the regulation applies only to Scotland.

It is to be observed that by the Intestates Estates Act (53 and 54 Vict. c. 29) a very important alteration has been made in the law as regards provisions for widows of men who die intestate, and without issue, after 1st September, 1890: it is enacted that if the real and personal estate together do not exceed £500, the whole is to go to the widow; if it exceeds £500, the widow is to have a charge on both proportionately for £500. The provision is to be in addition to her share of the residue. This does not apply to Scotland.

If the Intestate die, leaving		His representatives take in the proportion following:—
Wife only, no blood relations	Half to wife, other half to the Crown.
Wife, no near relations	Half to wife, rest to next-of-kin in equal degree to intestate, or their legal representatives.
Wife and child, or children, and children of a deceased child	One-third to wife, rest to the representatives (that is, their lineal descendants).
Wife and father	*One-third to wife; one-third to living children in equal shares; one-third equally among living children per capita and issue of dead children per stirpes .
Wife and mother	Half to wife, and half to father.
Wife, brother, or sister and children of a deceased brother or sister	Half to wife, and half to mother.
Wife, mother, nephews, and nieces	*Half to wife; one-sixth to mother, two-sixths to Crown falling kin.
Wife, mother, brothers, sisters, and nieces (children of deceased brothers and sisters)	Half to wife, one-fourth to living brother or sister, one-fourth to deceased brother's or sister's children.
No wife or child	*Half to wife; one-sixth to brother, two-sixths equally among children of dead brother or sister.
Children by one or more wives and the issue of deceased children	Half to wife, one-fourth to mother, and other fourth to nephews and nieces per stirpes .
Husband and children	*Half to wife; one-sixth to mother, two-sixths among nephews and nieces per stirpes .
Mother, but no wife, child, father, brother, sister, nephew, or niece	Half to wife, residue to mother, brother, sisters, and nieces.
Mother and brother	*Half to wife; one-sixth to mother, two-sixths among the brothers and sisters (who take per capita), and the nieces who take per stirpes .
Mother, and brothers and sisters	All to next-of-kin and their legal representatives.
Father, and brothers and sisters	All children equally per capita , issue of deceased children per stirpes ; no difference between children of different wives.
Child and grandchild by deceased child	*One-half equally amongst all living children; the other half equally amongst living children per capita , and issue of dead children per stirpes .
If no child, children, or representatives of them	Whole to husband.
Brother or sister, and children of a deceased brother or sister	The whole to mother.
Brother and grandfather	*One-third to mother; two-thirds to the Crown falling kin.
Brother's grandson, and brother or sister's daughter	Equally.
Brother and two aunts	*Mother one-third; brother two-thirds.
Brother and wife	Whole to them equally.
Grandfather, no nearer relation	*Mother one-third; brothers and sisters two-thirds equally per capita .
Father's father, and mother's mother	Whole to father.
Grandmother, uncle, or aunt	*One-half to father, the other half equally amongst brothers and sisters per capita .
Uncle, and deceased uncle's child	Half to child, half to grandchild, who takes by representation.
Uncle by mother's side, and deceased uncle or aunt's child	*Three-fourths to child, one-fourth to grandchild.
Two aunts, nephew, and niece	All to next-of-kin in equal degree to intestate.
Uncle's or aunt's children, and brother's or sister's grandchildren	Half to brother or sister per capita , half to children or deceased brother or sister per stirpes .
Nephew by brother, and nephew by half-sister	Whole to brother.
Nephew by deceased brother, and nephews and nieces by deceased sister	All to daughter.
		All to brother.
		Half to brother, half to wife.
		All to grandfather.
		Equally to both.
		All to grandmother.
		*All to uncle or aunt if paternal.
		All to uncle.
		All to uncle.
		*Child of deceased paternal uncle or aunt takes in exclusion of maternal uncle.
		Equally to all.
		*Nephew and niece.
		Equally to all.
		*Brother's or sister's grandchildren.
		Equally per capita .
		*All to nephew by brother.
		*Each in equal shares per capita , and not per stirpes .
		*The same.

NOTE.—Per capita, that is, taking individually and not by representation. Per stirpes, that is, through descent and not in their own rights.
